Dear Adobe

I am one of thousands of FreeHand users. Since you acquired Macromedia 4 years ago, I have watched as you have developed Dreamweaver and Flash into the CS lineup. And I have watched as you've told FreeHand users to simply embrace Illustrator.

*While you have put FreeHand features into Illustrator, you have missed what's important to me; the simplicity of it's interface, the logic of it's tools, and the speed of it's functions. Instead what I have in Illustrator is a frustrating workaround compared to the ease of what I know and what I base my profession on. Illustrator is not a FreeHand substitute!

I am now your new customer base when you took over FreeHand. You have a responsibility to myself and thousands more FreeHand users and my patience has been used up. Removing FreeHand is not an option so as an Adobe customer I am telling you I need a solution:

- Upgrade FreeHand fully into the CS lineup
- Sell FreeHand to another company who cares
- Release FreeHand into Open Source

Do what's right with the future of FreeHand. I will be watching Adobe.com for your reply or you will hear from me again.

Sincerely,
